Whether to bargain or not usually depends on which part of the world you are in. In Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Latin America or Africa, you are 31 to ask for a lower price. However, if you are shopping in North America, Europe and Australia, the act of bargaining is actually 32. Bargaining also differs from store to store. 33 large stores and shopping malls don't allow bargaining, it is okay to bargain when shopping at 34 and flea markets. The 35 are a few rules to keep in mind. First of all, don't waste people's time if you don't 36 to buy an item. Second, be polite and don't get 37 if you don't like the price. 38, don't criticize items made by the shop's owners. Last but not least, know when to stop. Even in countries where bargaining isn't allowed, there are 39 opportunities to save money. For example, huge sales usually take place at the end of a season. Many stores also sell old items on clearance or offer 40 cards to regular customers. As long as you do your homework and understand local customs before visiting different countries, you will and can enjoy shopping for great goods at good prices.

Earlier this week, the murder of a 28-year-old Chicago man was captured live on Facebook. One minute the man was hanging out with friends and livestreaming on Facebook. The next, there are sounds of gunshots and screaming. He was shot Wednesday night, and yet Facebook hasn't pulled the video from its platform, which begs the question: Why not? According to Facebook, the video doesn't violate its community standards because it doesn't believe the video celebrates violence. It deemed that it falls under a different category: Raising awareness. Instead of removing those types of videos, they're marked with a user warning.

It's a fine line. When an ISIS sympathizer killed a police commander and livestreamed it earlier this week, that video was pulled. Facebook's community standards are broken into eight categories, including attacks on public figures, bullying and harassment, sexual violence and regulated goods. But exactly what it allows and when isn't so cut and dry. The community standards state that it "aims to find the right balance" to keep people safe, encourage respectful behavior, acknowledge cultural diversity, and empower people to control what they see in their feeds. --excerpted from CNN.com

I was appointed as Goodwill Ambassador for U.N. Women six months ago and the more I've spoken about feminism, the more I have realized that fighting for women's rights has too often become synonymous with man-hating. If there is one thing I know for certain, it is that this has to stop. For the record, feminism, by definition, is the belief that men and women should have equal rights and opportunities. It is the theory of the political, economic and social equality of the sexes. I started questioning gender-based assumptions a long time ago.

When I was 8, I was confused about being called "bossy" because I wanted to direct the plays that we would put on for our parents. But the boys were not. When at 14, I started to be sexualized by certain elements of the media, when at 15, my girlfriends started dropping out of their beloved sports teams, because they didn't want to appear "muscle-y," when at 18, my male friends were unable to express their feelings, I decided that I was a feminist. And this seems uncomplicated to me. But my recent research has shown me that feminism has become an unpopular word.

Women are choosing not to identify as feminists. Apparently, I am among the ranks of women whose expressions are seen as too strong, "too aggressive," isolating and anti-men, unattractive, even. Why has the word become such an uncomfortable one? --an excerpt from Emma Watson's speech

48. Where was the speech most likely be delivered?

- (A) at a Harry Potter movie premiere (B) at a protest in front of the Lincoln Memorial
(C) at a kindergarten graduation ceremony (D) at the United Nations headquarters

49. Which of the following statement about feminism/feminist is NOT true according to the passage?

- (A) Feminists are sometimes seen as man-hating and even unattractive.
(B) Feminism is the belief that both sexes should enjoy the same rights.
(C) Feminism isolates people, making them unpopular and uncomfortable.
(D) Feminists believe that males should be able to express their feelings like females.

50. Emma Watson _____.

- (A) dropped out of her beloved sports team in high school
- (B) is considered too aggressive because she embraces feminism
- (C) has male friends who think that feminism is a complicated concept
- (D) is sexualized by the media after she becomes the Goodwill Ambassador
