It's a widely known truth that words have power and rude ones can hurt our feelings. Not surprisingly, many of us have encountered verbal abuse. Verbal abuse is, __11__, quite common. However, many people aren't __12__ how much verbal abuse can affect us. Verbal abuse, according to scientific research, can harm us emotionally and physically. One type of verbal abuse is an active assault. This happens when a boss calls an employee an idiot, or when a student is harassed by classmates __13__ being different. __14__ many people's __14__, verbal abuse happens in the family as well. For example, a parent may insult or scold a child regularly. Passive verbal abuse occurs when a parent ignores a child or frequently __15__ the child's opinions. __16__ to verbal abuse, some people are likely to have low self-esteem or be troubled by emotional problems such as anxiety or depression. __17__, these people may choose to end their lives. Other victims may inflict this pain on others because this is the only means of expression they know. Long-term damage of such abuse cannot be overlooked either. One study showed that verbal abuse victims' brains looked much like __18__ of disabled people. We should remember that mental scars caused by verbal abuse, though invisible on the outside, can run deep on the inside, and we should choose our words wisely before uttering them.

Many people have heard of Hayao Miyazaki and his internationally __19__ films. A key figure and concept artist in Studio Ghibli, Miyazaki started showing his interest in animation when he was young. Although he earned degrees in political science and economics from Gakushuin University, he chose to pursue a career in animation. Before long, Miyazaki became well-known for his outstanding drawing ability and artistic creativity.

Like many other great artists, Miyazaki was greatly influenced by his childhood experiences. For example, he spent his early childhood dealing with air-raid sirens and daily bombings, __20__ thus is considered the reason why anti-war messages and tremendous optimism can be found in his films. Also, the __21__ of strong female characters is another obvious characteristic that makes Miyazaki's works one of a kind. In addition, flying is a recurring theme in his movies, and his flying vehicles are often imaginary, with the design never possible in real life. __22__ his early exposure to aviation, Miyazaki __22__ so inspired by flying then. Finally, Miyazaki's films stand out because his characters reflect reality. In Miyazaki's opinion, there is no clear cut between good and evil. Villains can reveal certain positive traits __23__ their violence, evil, and hatred. Audiences will conclude that people are __24__ completely righteous __24__ completely wicked and there are always positive things worth __25__ for. No wonder Miyazaki's films are loved by moviegoers and critics, for they are really true to life.

The Hate U Give tells the story of Starr Carter. She's a 16-year-old black girl who lives in Garden Heights, a poor black neighborhood. However, Starr doesn't go to a local school; instead, she __31__ Williamson Prep, a private high school where most students are white. This means Starr never quite feels like she __32__ in either environment. Starr's __33__ conflict about who she is plays an important role in the book. Her external problems, on the other hand, begin at a house party in Garden Heights. At this party, Starr is talking with Khalil, one of her childhood friends. She discovers he's been selling drugs for King, the leader of a local gang. Khalil is doing this as there's no other way he can __34__ his family's debts. Suddenly, a fight breaks out at the party. Two rival gangs face off, and shots are fired. Starr and Khalil __35__ the party in Khalil's car. When they're stopped by a police officer, __36__ strikes. The policeman shoots and kills Khalil when he thinks Khalil is reaching for a gun. Starr doesn't want to identify herself as the __37__ witness to this incident. However, when the incident makes national news, the media __38__ Khalil as a dangerous drug dealer, while the policeman is shown in a positive light. At last, Starr agrees to testify about what happened to save her friend's __39__. At the hearing, the officer is found not guilty. Riots break out in Garden Heights in response to this injustice. During the chaos, King sets fire to Starr's family's store while she and others are still inside. After the riots are over, the neighborhood hands King over to the police. Starr, who has come to accept both sides of herself, decides to __40__ Khalil's memory. She is going to fight against racism with the most powerful weapon she has: her voice.

四、篇章結構 (10%)

Young children and teenagers often face difficult situations, such as bullying, physical abuse, drug problems, and family troubles. __41__ That's where ChildLine steps in.

ChildLine began in the United Kingdom in 1986 as a telephone "help line" for kids who were being abused by their parents. But over the years, it has developed into so much more. __42__ In 1998, the organization also started working in schools to provide support for troubled students, and it began teaching communication skills so that boys and girls could better handle problems themselves. __43__ The Family Law Act, passed in 1996, gives courts in the United Kingdom the power to remove child abusers from a home. And the Protection of Children Act, passed in 1999, allows the government to prevent unsuitable people from working with kids in health and social care.

__44__ The program has spread to dozens of countries around the world, including the United States of America, South Africa, and India. According to one child, "I know in my heart that if it had not been for ChildLine, I wouldn't be alive right now." __45__

- (A) In 1999, for example, ChildLine opened its help line to children who were being bullied.
- (B) ChildLine has even helped to pass certain law.
- (C) Sadly, it is not always easy for kids and teens to find help or good advice.
- (D) Without a doubt, this program has already accomplished so much, and it is hoped that it will continue to grow and help even more young people.
- (E) Today, in the UK alone, ChildLine has nearly 1,400 counselors answering the phone calls of young people in need of help.

Some people dream of living in a huge house. Others, however, are happy with a small space that's just perfect for them. On TLC's show Tiny House, Big Living, we meet some of the latter, and take a look at the small houses they've built or had built for themselves.

One couple we meet is Jared and Jessie. They are artists and run their own art-print clothing business, Bunkerfish. They plan to live on a houseboat in New Jersey's Long Beach Island. There are lots of details to set this living space apart. It has an arched door and two round windows provided by the island's Maritime Museum. The bathroom sink even looks like a giant clam, which Jessie made herself. She also painted the name of the boat, Bunkerhouse, on the side of the boat. Their houseboat, which is surprisingly spacious, is perfect for their creative personalities.

Jared and Jessie did a lot of the work themselves, but single mother Nadia has hired a company, Hummingbird TINY Housing, to make a tiny house for her. Nadia's daughter will soon move away to college, so Nadia wants to downsize and move into a smaller home that can travel. She has some big plans, and what's more, she wants everything to be made with eco-friendly materials.

However, the builders encounter a problem with Nadia's sitting room design. The built-in table doesn't lower completely into the floor. The plans are quickly changed, so the sitting area now features a fold-down table. As well, there's a second bed in the form of a wooden bedroll that sits across the tops of the sofas and can support a queen-sized mattress. There's also a great deal of storage space for Nadia to use. Check out TLC's Tiny House, Big Living to see how more people make their tiny home dreams a reality.

46. What is this article mostly about?

- (A) The things to consider when building a small house.
- (B) One woman who built her own small house by hand.
- (C) A TV show about people with small but perfect houses.
- (D) A TV show about a company that builds small houses.

47. According to the article, which of the following does Bunkerhouse NOT feature?

- (A) Windows that are round rather than square.
- (B) A roll-up bed that can take a queen-sized mattress.
- (C) The name of the house painted on the outside.

(D) A door with a curve at the top rather than a straight line.

48. What is the reason for Nadia's change of home?

- (A) It will be the best place for her to make art-print T-shirts.
- (B) She has always dreamed of living on a houseboat.
- (C) She can no longer afford the big house she lives in now.
- (D) She will need less space when her child goes away.

49. What does the bathroom sink in Bunkerhouse look like?

(A)

(B)

(D)

50. What problem led to a change in the plans for Nadia's house?

- (A) The table she originally wanted couldn't function as she had expected.
- (B) It turned out there was no room for a second bed as Nadia had hoped for.
- (C) The builders couldn't make a bedroll that supported a queen-sized mattress.
- (D) There wasn't as much storage space as she had originally hoped for.
