Habits are hard to break. That's why people often avoid 11. even if it's for their own good.

Many feel the best way to get people to change is to introduce a little bit of fun. It was this approach that Portuguese traffic operators used to stop pedestrians from ignoring red lights. First, they set up a booth where anybody could dance to the music. Then, they connected the dancer to the "red man" 12. on traffic lights. The result was that the red man performed whatever moves the person in the booth performed. This proved to be 13. interesting that pedestrians stopped to watch. Suddenly, waiting for the traffic light was fun. In the end, the number of pedestrians who waited for the green light increased by 81%!

A Swedish subway station had a similar idea. They changed the stairs to the exit 14. them look like giant piano keys. People who stepped on the keys could even produce different musical notes. This encouraged 66% more people to 15. the stairs 15. the escalator. The experiment was also successful simply because people had such a good time.

Who would have thought that toothpaste is almost as good at cleaning jewelry as it is at cleaning teeth? Rub toothpaste on silver jewelry or scrub 16 with toothpaste and a soft toothbrush. They'll be as bright as your pearly whites in no time!

Since toothpaste is great at cleaning our teeth, it's no surprise that it can clean other things. In fact, it can be used for all types of cleaning around the house. Some people swear by it for getting stains out of carpets or 17 marks from walls. Others get out the toothpaste when they need to scrub the bathroom sink. Not only does it get rid of 18 and stains on the sink, but it also helps get rid of bad smells from the drain.

To fix shallow scratches in glass or plastic, apply a little toothpaste, use a soft cloth and rub in 19 motions, and then wash off the toothpaste. The grittiness of toothpaste can get rid of scratches by evening out the surface. People have used this 20 on CDs, glasses, phone screens, and even cars!

Who knew that toothpaste had so many uses? From treating bug bites to cleaning the house, toothpaste does it all! Next time you're in a pinch, toothpaste might just save the day!

Last fall, my daughter and I visited Kindred Spirit Elephant Sanctuary, which is located in the mountains of Northern Thailand. Although our stay was short, it 21 to be the most memorable part of our holiday.

Early the next morning, we saw Too Meh and Mae Doom exploring the forest and Dodo playing by the river. Seeing them free was a 22 experience.

Kindred Spirit Elephant Sanctuary was founded by Kerri, who grew up in Northern Ireland, and her husband, Sombat, a member of the Karen tribe. Their goal is to 23 the welfare of elephants, and that is why the sanctuary does not offer elephant 24 or elephant performances of any kind. Instead, it tries to educate 25 about these amazing animals.

But we did more than just get to know the elephants. We also cooked and ate together with our host family, took a lesson in basket weaving, learned about the language of the Karen people, and helped teach English to the children in the village. In doing these activities, we were able to experience the 26 customs and culture firsthand. By providing such opportunities to visitors, the sanctuary gives back to the village by helping the villagers make money and learn English. It's a win-win situation.

Part 4: Short Talk Questions (3%)

Listen to the following paragraph and answer the questions.

Toothpaste deserves far more recognition. This ordinary item can clean not only people's teeth but also a whole range of other things. For example, the dirty rubber on your sneakers will look white again after you use a little toothpaste. Having problems getting that oily stain out of your shirt? Reach for the toothpaste! Believe it or not, toothpaste can also be used on your fingernails and toenails. To get that perfect shine, all you need to do is scrub them with toothpaste. So next time you go shopping, grab a few extra tubes. With so many benefits, it seems like a good idea to keep toothpaste in every room, not just the bathroom! (延伸自 10 Unit 2)

- (B) 8. Why should you use toothpaste on your sneakers?
- (A) To get rid of bad smell.
  - (B) To clean the rubber part.
  - (C) To keep them from getting wet.
  - (D) To make them comfortable to wear.
- (D) 9. Which is NOT something toothpaste can do?
- (A) Clean people's teeth.
  - (B) Remove stains on clothes.
  - (C) Polish people's nails.
  - (D) Make rooms smell nice.
- (A) 10. What is the best title for the passage?
- (A) Amazing Uses of Toothpaste
  - (B) How to Choose a Toothpaste
  - (C) Make Your Own Toothpaste
  - (D) How to Look After Your Teeth
